ALL READY IN OCTOBER

My Lady of Doubt

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "My Lady of the South," "Love Under Fire," etc., etc.

With five full color illustrations by ALONZO KIMBALL. Crown 8vo.

Randall Parrish has proved by this time that he never "falls down." Every novel he writes makes a success, and the trade has learned to order his books liberally, with every confidence in a quick sale. He has become a sure thing. This novel is a story of the American revolution written at the top of his best style—action, romance, picturesqueness—everything you want. $1.35 net.

As the Sparks Fly Upward

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "The Island of Regeneration," "The Southerners," etc., etc.

With five full color illustrations by the KINNEYS. Crown 8vo.

Several writers have been fascinated with the romantic possibilities of two castaways on a tropical island. Dr. Brady, we believe, has gone them all one better (even himself, in "The Island of Regeneration"). And he, like Mr. Parrish, is another of that small band of American writers who gets everything over to his audience (as they say in dramatic criticism). This is a splendid story, an idyl of a modern Adam and Eve in a South Pacific Paradise. $1.35 net.

The Blood of the Arena

By SENOR VICENTE BLASCO IBANEZ

Translated from the Spanish by FRANCES DOUGLAS.

With four full color illustrations by J. N. MARCHAND. Crown 8vo.

Translations from the works of the really great novelists of Europe are in greater demand every succeeding season. This is the first time any novel by the greatest living Spanish writer has been offered in a translated form to the American public, and dealers will find that it will command instant attention from their more discriminating fiction buyers. This truly magnificent novel is a translation of "Sangre y Arena," and gives a picture of what Spanish life—and especially the bull-fighters life—really is, that will be declared nothing less than a masterpiece. $1.35 net.

MOFFAT, YARD
AND COMPANYFIVE GOOD NOVELSMOFFAT, YARD
AND COMPANY*Second PrintingWHEN THE RED GODS CALL

By BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

12mo. $1.35 net.

"Whether the events recounted in 'When the Red Gods Call' ever happened, whether such marvels as are depicted exist, whether man or woman could emerge alive from the horrors described in its final pages, really does not matter at all. For the purpose of her story, Miss Grimshaw has told the truth. Its people and its scene seem to have life. They hold the reader firm in a grasp of absorbing interest. Stories of New Guinea, of its coast settlements and its interior native lairs, are so rare that this narrative of the adventures of Hugh Lynch and Stephanie Hammond has a novelty peculiarly its own. In its writing Miss Grimshaw has devised something out of the way in modern fiction. * * * The story moves rapidly into scenes of happiness and peace, and the reader will lay it down with the assurance of time well spent in learning of a strange land and a stranger people."—Boston Evening Transcript.

*Second PrintingTHE HOUSE IN THE HEDGE

By RALPH HENRY BARBOUR

Illustrated in color and black and white by Gertrude A. Kay.
$1.10 net. Postage 10c.

An extremely bright and captivating love story by the author of "Kitty of the Roses." The mystery attendant upon the strange man so carefully guarded against all inquirers in the house the other side of the hedge is finally solved to the satisfaction of the neighborhood, but in its solution the breezy and very modern heroine loses a priceless possession. The story of this loss, which proves irrevocable, and how she gets it back in the last chapter, and from the hands of the mysterious man, at that, another heart in its place, makes one of the most felicitous tales of several seasons.

*Second PrintingBASSET: A Village Chronicle

By S. G. TALLENTYRE

12mo. $1.25 net. By mail, $1.37.

"Absolutely unpretentious, this simple story is marked with some of the finest qualities of literature. * * * To say that the tale is as charming as 'Cranford' would be to say too much and too little. The interest is more diversified than in 'Cranford,' though the Cranford quality fills the White Cottage, where Miss Rachel Pilkington lived and where her niece Ann came to seek her fortune and found it. 'Basset' has its own distinction and its own exquisite quality; no finer bit of work, in its own class, has come under our notice in a long time."—Evening Sun, New York.

*Second PrintingBARBARA OF THE SNOWS

By HARRY IRVING GREENE

Color frontispiece and Other Drawing by Harvey Dunn.
12mo. $1.35 net. By mail, $1.47.

This is a fine outdoor novel, full to the brim of youth, spirit, struggle and unconquerable purpose. The scene is a city of the middle West and the forest of the Northwest. The hero strikes down a man at his club and, branded, the murderer escapes to lose himself in the woods. Here, unknown, and with every man's hand against him, he works out his life and forces success. "In consequence, 'Barbara of the Snows' is to be recommended, not alone because it tells a story worth one's while, but for the manner of the telling, too."

*Twelfth Large PrintingTHE HOUSE OF BONDAGE

By REGINALD WRIGHT KAUFFMAN

Read what Margaret Sherwood says in the May ATLANTIC MONTHLY.

"If these things are true, and the quiet massing of detail carries conviction with it, this presentation of the most cruel of all the cruel human tragedies of our modern life cannot be ignored. * * * this story of the traffic in the bodies and the souls of women is told with high dignity, and, in spite of its full revelations, a certain reserve. * * *"

MOFFAT, YARD AND COMPANY, UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK

DIVORCE?—OR HELL?

Would you get a divorce if your husband were a hopeless drunkard, who neglected his home and stole your money for drink? If you got a divorce, would you feel free to marry again?

REBELLION

A Novel by
JOSEPH MEDILL

handles without gloves the subject of Divorce. It is a big story of fine, honest purpose—a story with a punch! REBELLION is stronger and better than Mr. Patterson's "A Little Brother of the Rich," and like that great success is bound to be widely discussed and to excite much controversy.

The novel that is talked about is the one that sells. This is a year of big novels; among the big ones REBELLION will stand out because it will be talked about—discussed by the newspapers—probably condemned by some of the clergy (as was the play "Rebellion" when given a try-out in Kansas City by Miss Gertrude Elliott).

Philadelphia Dispatch—"The secret of his power is the same God-given secret that inspired Shakespeare and upheld Dickens."

¶ The Winning of Barbara Worth is another star in the author's crown of success and the brightest of them all.

¶ As clean a story as man ever wrote—a story with big incidents, strong people, high ideals and the Spirit of the West.

¶ A story of desert life and the national reclamation work with a sane, wholesome message as broad as humanity itself—The Ministry of Capital.

Oregon Journal, Portland—"It is this almost clairvoyant power of reading the human soul that has made Mr. Wright's books among the most remarkable works of the present age."

The Biggest Edition Ever Printed of Any Novel—By special arrangement A. L. Burt Company, 52 Duane St., New York, will publish 250,000 copies of The Calling of Dan Matthews in a Popular Edition on the 15th of September. (The largest deal ever "put over," of its kind.) The Calling of Dan Matthews will be the "Big Popular" this fall with The Shepherd of the Hills and That Printer of Udell's contending for second place. Over 700,000 copies (thirty-five car-loads) of The Shepherd of the Hills have been sold.

The Uncrowned King

An Allegory (not a novel)

New York Tribune—"It embodies the aspiration, civic and moral, of the present day."
Grand Rapids Herald—"It is the greatest story since Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress.'"
Omaha World-Herald—"It is a classic in nature and spirit and rendering."
Buffalo Evening News—"It represents dreams of artistic magnificence."

Three Successful Novels

Bawbee Jock

4th Printing

By AMY McLAREN

$1.35 net

"A real love story, delightfully narrated. So many fine, tender passages, that reading the book is like breathing strong, refreshing air."—N. Y. Eve. Sun.

The Claw

4th Printing

By CYNTHIA STOCKLEY Frontispiece. $1.35 net

"The writer of these lines cannot recall a novel heroine more sweet and straight and lovable and big of heart, and true and just of thought, and merciful, than is fair Deirdre Saurin (bless her!) of The Claw.

"The Claw has claim to a cordial appreciation on the part of very many readers who are fond of stirring, living stories fitly told."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

N. B.—Mrs. Stockley's Poppy is now in its 10th Edition.

Down Our Street

2nd Printing

By J. E. BUCKROSE

$1.35 net

"A modern Pomander Walk, full of wit, good sense, and a dash of pathos."—MISS GILDER in The Reader.

"You will read this book to be amused. It is light as thistledown, but very pretty, and it has a character, Mrs. Bean, who is a sort of English Mrs. Wiggs, not as poor as the lady of the cabbage patch, but just as much of an optimist. It is a charming story."—Chicago Tribune.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY will publish "The Winning of Barbara Worth," the new novel by Harold Bell Wright, on August 19. They have ordered paper for the second printing, making the two hundred and fiftieth thousand, as they are at the present time over-sold and their first edition of one hundred and seventy-five thousand copies.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish August 25 Robert W. Chambers's "The Common Law," a novel now appearing serially in the Cosmopolitan, which promises to be the greatest success of a remarkably successful author. Much discussion has been aroused by the problems worked out in this story, and its publication in book form before the serial has been completed will no doubt help its career. The illustrations, numbering over fifty, are by Charles Dana Gibson.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. announce for early publication a new and improved edition of the well-known "New Home Cook Book." This book has found such wide favor with housewives that nearly one hundred thousand copies of the previous editions have been sold. In its chief and distinctive character as a collection of choice and valuable recipes, tried and approved by experienced housekeepers, the work is unchanged, but it will be enriched by new and expressly prepared articles on the following subjects: "The Fireless Cooker and the Casserole," "Sunday Night Suppers," "Housekeeping in the Twentieth Century," "Home Making and House Furnishing," and "Oil and Gas Stove Cooking."

A NUMBER of Moffat, Yard & Company's recent novels are gaining in popularity among a wide circle of readers. Such a story as Beatrice Grimshaw's "When the Red Gods Call"—a tale of adventure in New Guinea—appeals both through its original treatment of a strange land and strange people and through its tense and absorbing action. In contrast to this is S. G. Tallentyre's "Basset: a Village Chronicle," one of the most charming novels of the Cranford type published in recent years—a book of distinction and fine workmanship which will not soon be forgotten. Ralph Henry Barbour's dainty tale, "The House in the Hedge," and Harry Irving Greene's stirring out-door story, "Barbara of the Snows," are successful piazza novels. "The House of Bondage," by Reginald Wright Kauffman, has, by reason of its terrible revelations, been ranked among those works whose influence is felt by all who are keenly interested in the problems of our social organization.

AMONG the new books of Dana Estes & Co. are "Talbot's Angles," a story of Southern life by Amy Blanchard, author of "The Glad Lady" and other books, "Captain Cartwright's Journal," the account of an expedition to Labrador in times past, edited by Dr. C. W. Townsend, who wrote "A Labrador Spring" and "Along the Labrador Coast," "A Voyage to the Arctic in the Whaler Aurora," by David Moore Lindsay, who tells of his own experiences as surgeon during the rescue of the Greely expedition; and "The Crooked Trail," a vigorous novel of early days in Texas by Lewis B. Miller, who has made the most of the thrilling life of the period when pioneers struggled with savages, outlaws and cattle thieves. Three biographical studies issued by this house are "Frank Brangwyn and His Work," by Walter Shaw-Sparrow; "Talleyrand, the Man," from the French of Bernard de Lacombe, compiled from hitherto unpublished sources; and "Two Noble Lives," by Laura E. Richards, sketches of Samuel Gridley Howe and Julia Ward Howe. A valuable book for those interested in dog breeding and keeping is "Our Dogs and All About Them," by Frank Townsend Barton, an expert of long experience.

Education and the mores; a sociological essay. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (Ag5) c. 104 p. O. (Columbia Univ., studies in history, economics and public law.) pap., 75 c. n.

This essay strives to interpret education in the light of one of its principal social functions. The conservation of tradition is one of the ends of adult instruction of the younger generation, since success is largely associated with it. A consideration of the beliefs and the habits of thought which are perpetuated requires a definition of the "mores." The "mores" are forms of usage which have current approbation in a community at a time and place. They are a mass of customs, habits, ways of thinking and acting, which ordinarily are accepted and followed without attention. "They are the ways of doing things which are current in a society to satisfy human needs and desires." Here is considered historical antecedents of tradition; Education conserves the mores; Importance and extent of mores; Elementary school curricula and the mores, by a Sometime University Fellow in sociology.

Secretary of frivolous affairs. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill, ['11.] (Ag5) c. 311 p. il. D. $1.25 n.

Josephine Codman and her sister Loulie find themselves not only alone in the world, but without a cent of income and under the immediate necessity of earning something. A very unusual position is offered Loulie by a Mrs. Hazard, social leader and chief-occupier of the Sunday supplements, who wants what she calls a "secretary of frivolous affairs" to keep things stirred up socially in her summer home and to help waylay her son and daughter in their unfortunate matrimonial inclinations. A count, who is a thief, adds an element of excitement to a clever, kindly tale of a series of fashionable happenings. Loulie's encounter with him hastens her love affair with the son, and her sister Josephine announces her engagement at the same time, and all ends well.

This book embraces all the most useful styles of letters used by sign and card writers, as well as a great number and variety of monograms, specimens of wood letters and projecting signs. An especially noteworthy feature is its full instructions for beginners; something not contained in any work of the kind that we have seen, such as Shading of letters, Aluminum leaves and gilding, Color harmony, Cutting in, Colors for sign work, Diagram of spacing. The author is not only an expert letterer, but having spent more than thirty years in the business is enabled to write instructively for others.

The glory of Clementina; il. by Arth. I. Keller. N. Y., J: Lane, '11. (Ag5) c. 367 p. D. $1.30, fixed.

Clementina Wing is a great artist, her life having found this expression after being thwarted in another way. In spite of the richness of her talent, through her early tragedy her nature was warped. She regarded the planning for clothes an obsession of the insane, and her abrupt, rough ways hid a fine nature. She has two protégés who, in spite of herself, have won her affection—Tommy and Etta. She also has an antagonism in the form of a noted doctor of anthropological science, Dr. Quixtus. How Clementina subjugates her love for Tommy and engineers his marriage with Etta; how, through pity and joint trusteeship in a little child she and Dr. Quixtus gradually shuffle off their mutual antagonism, and how, to save him from the wiles of a woman desiring wealth, Clementina blooms into expensive gowns and feminine ways and love for him herself is told with skill. Clementina's "glory" is being just a woman and marrying the man she loves.

The life and letters of Sir John Hall; with an introd. by Rear-Admiral Sir R. Massie Blomfield. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (Ag5) 26+560 p. il. por. O. $5 n.

This biography is by the author, who is a Hindu, of "Indian problems," "Hindupore," etc. Volumes have been written on the Medical Department in the Crimea, but this book represents the first attempt to furnish the public with an account of its working based on the private papers of the principal medical officer. The bulk of the matter is founded on Sir John Hall's memoranda and diaries. Fifty-five years have elapsed since Miss Nightingale and Sir John Hall were associated in the control of the Crimean Nursing Establishment. The reader is introduced to a particular part of England's empire, and an historical résumé is given to refresh the memory and make subsequent events more intelligible. Sir John Hall died in January, 1866. Index.

The time of Charles the Great represents the boundary line between ancient and modern history. The present work is restricted to an attempt to place in a clearer light the character of the learning and the theory of education which mediæval Europe inherited from a combination of pagan science and Christian theology. In this ninth century may be discerned all the principles which, save in the darkest times, have rarely since ceased to be apparent in the great centers of our higher education. Author is of St. John's College, Cambridge, Eng., and has written "University of Cambridge from the earliest times," etc.

The division of the Union into states is the prime fact in our political life; but of hardly less importance than this is the division of the states into counties and towns and districts for legislative purposes. This study presents those provisions of our American State Constitutions which bear upon the formation of these, and other, interior districts, to present what seems to be the great need in American politics, a wider horizon for those who are putting their views into practical effect.

The Publishers' Weekly

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

August 5, 1911

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

FREE PAPER FROM CANADA.

In the Senate, on the afternoon of July 22, the bill approving and confirming the agreement with Canada for tariff reciprocity was passed by a vote of 53 to 27. The bill as passed was the House bill, without change.

Only one portion of the statute went into effect immediately after the President's signing; the others must await the approval of the Canadian Parliament, and action at Ottawa has been prevented by the obstruction of the Conservative minority. It is now expected that the Government will appeal to the people at a new election, probably in October, and that at this election the desire of a large majority of Canada's voters for approval of the agreement will be clearly given.

It happens, however, that the one clause in immediate effect, that providing for the free importation of paper and pulp, is the one clause of special interest to publishers.

The fight for free paper has been chiefly one of the newspaper publishers, to whom the cost of paper is, of course, of vital importance. Under the direction of a committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, led by John Norris, an aggressive four years' long campaign has been waged. There was in the beginning a duty of $1.67 on pulp brought into the States from any Province of Canada, and one of $6.10 a ton on manufactured paper from any part of the Dominion. Two years' campaigning succeeded in reducing the paper duty to $3.75 a ton; and the abolition of the duty entirely on pulp from provinces not restricting its exportation was accomplished when the Dingley tariff was revised in 1909.

It continued thus until Quebec and Ontario last year decided, with British Columbia, to put an export tax on wood pulp and paper from Crown lands, and in accordance with the provisions of the change in the tariff of 1909, paper from those provinces coming into the United States has had to pay \$5.75 duty, and wood pulp (mechanically ground)  $\frac{1}{2}$  of a cent per pound; unbleached, chemically ground pulp,  $\frac{1}{6}$  of a cent a pound, dry weight; and bleached pulp  $\frac{1}{4}$  of a cent dry weight. New Brunswick has decided to join Quebec and Ontario on October 1 next in their export taxes. These apply, however, to Crown lands only.

More important, however, than the direct paper and pulp importation from Canada is the result of Canadian competition on paper production and prices in this country. This competition has an indirect as well as a direct result, for the unsettled conditions in the paper trade for several years past have acted as a deterrent to further manufacturing installations, which the enormously increasing demands of paper consumers have now rendered almost imperative. The net result of the new law should be a general easing of paper costs all along the line, and from this book and magazine publishers, as well as newspaper publishers, should benefit, though to a less extent.

LEADING railroads throughout the country are said to be preparing to combat the present widespread demand for a general decrease in express rates. Their position was made clear two weeks ago at the hearing on the express charges and express companies' methods before the sub-committee representing the National Association of Railroad Commissioners.

P. S. Eustis, passenger traffic manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, said that his company would resist all attempts to force a lower scale of prices on the express carriers. Representatives of other roads also said they would fight the attempt to cut the rates.

The railroads' interest in the various express companies, through actual stock ownership in them, is known to be very large if not predominant. This may help to explain their position.

Printers' Ink says: "Advertising copy produced under the pressure of closing dates may be an inspiration—but you can't count on it."

THE SECOND CLASS POSTAL RATE HEARING.

PRESIDENT TAFT's commission for the investigation of the cost of handling and rates on second class mail matter, consisting of Justice Hughes, President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, and Harry A. Wheeler, vice-president of the United States Trust Company, of Chicago, began its sessions in the Federal Building, New York City, Tuesday morning.

For the Post Office Department there were present Postmaster-General Frank H. Hitchcock, Second Assistant Postmaster-General Joseph Stewart, and Third Assistant Postmaster-General James J. Britt.

Most of the large magazine publishers were represented by counsel, a number of the magazines having united in the engagement of Herbert Noble, James B. Sheehan and Alfred Houston to take care of their interests. Among the publications in this group are the Review of Reviews, Everybody's, McClure's, Saturday Evening Post, Delineator, Literary Digest, Woman's Home Companion and the American. Other smaller groups were also represented.

HITCHCOCK STATES HIS CASE.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock opened for the department. He said his study of the postage rate problem had led him to believe that certain fundamental principles of administration, almost new to the Post Office Department at present, should be closely adhered to. These he enumerated as follows:

"(1) The operation of the service on a self-supporting basis, maintained by the imposition of such charges as will yield an income equal to expenditures.

"(2) Such adjustment of postage charges as will provide for each class of mail matter a rate equal to the cost of handling and carriage.

"(3) The levying of postage rates on the basis of the average cost of handling and carriage for the country as a whole.

"(4) The administration of the service under laws so definite in character as to be easy of interpretation and susceptible of uniform enforcement."

Mr. Hitchcock opposed any new classification of mail matter at this time, saying the present classification could be made to include all matter now admissible, and he doubted the expediency of attempting a revision. He then sought to set forth the large share second class matter has in the burdens of the department, and the small percentage it pays of the total cost or even of its own cost.

AMOUNT OF MAIL CARRIED.

"During 1910," he said, "there were carried in the mail 8,310,164,623 pieces of first class mail, consisting of letters, other sealed matter, and postal cards. This mail averaged in weight 0.35 of an ounce a piece, making 45.1 pieces to the pound. The cost of handling and carriage for this mail was $86,792,511.35, an average of 47 cents a pound, while the postage charge was $154,796,668.08, leaving a clear profit of $68,004,156.73.

"During the same year there were carried 4,336,259,864 pieces of second class matter, newspapers and other periodical publications, averaging 3.33 ounces a piece, or 4.8 pieces to the pound. The cost of handling and carriage was $80,791,615.03, or a little less than 9 cents a pound, while the postage return was only $10,607,271.02, leaving a total loss of $70,184,344.01.

"From a review of the rates provided for the several classes of mail, it will be observed that in comparison with the cent-a-pound charge for second class matter the rate on third class matter is 700 per cent. higher; that on fourth class matter 1500 per cent. higher, and that on letter and other first class matter 3100 per cent. higher. While it is true that the expense of handling and carrying second class mail is less than for any other class, due to the size and weight of single pieces, to relief from the cancellation of stamps, and to the fact that a considerable part of the bagging, sorting, and labelling in the offices of origin is done by the publishers, nevertheless a charge of 1 cent a pound covers but a small fraction of the actual cost.

TWO VIEWS OF PERIODICAL MAIL CARRIAGE.

"There appear to be two leading views respecting the question of second class postage. On the one hand it is urged that a nominal rate only should be charged, as at present, conceding to the publisher the remainder of the cost of handling and carriage as a subvention for the service performed by his publication in the dissemination of public intelligence. On the other hand, and this is the Department's view, it is contended that the time for a subvention has passed, and that accordingly the postage rate should be so revised as in a reasonable period to cover approximately the cost of handling and carriage, after such cost has been reduced to the lowest practicable figure.

"That the policy first named was the purpose of the act of March 3, 1879, which is still in effect, there can be no doubt, and it is equally certain that under the conditions existing when the law was enacted such a policy was eminently wise. Since then, however, a marked change has been wrought in the character of periodical publications. At that time such publications were for the most part in their infancy. They were relatively few in number and small in size. Their pages were devoted almost exclusively to the dissemination of general news and information. In 1879 the average weight of their mailing was about 50,000,000 pounds, while in 1911 it was close to a billion. Not only have these publications grown enormously in number and volume since the passage of the act, but they have been radically transformed in character by their development into mediums of advertising."

FAVORS GRADUAL READJUSTMENT.

Mr. Hitchcock said, however, that he did not believe that the rate for second class mail should be at once advanced* to where it would cover the cost of handling and carriage, although that should be the ultimate end in view. He pointed out that very considerable economies in administration are being made, and added:

"Because of this cutting down in cost it is all the more desirable to proceed slowly with any plan for increased postage, although, of course, a still stronger reason for avoiding radical action is the desire to impose no unreasonable hardship on the interests concerned. A radical increase suddenly required would undoubtedly do considerable injury to publishers who have built up prosperous business enterprises on the basis of the present rate. It must not be overlooked that these publishers, through the influence of their periodicals, have contributed a full share to our national development and prosperity, and their interests are as much entitled to governmental protection and encouragement as are the various other industries of the country.

"I have too much confidence in the wisdom and integrity of the publishers to believe that they will longer resist a reasonable advance in the rate of postage on their publications when once they are convinced, as they surely must be, that the present charge is not only inadequate, but is operating as a great injustice to those who are obliged to pay much higher rates of postage on other classes of mail. If the situation is met in a spirit of moderation and fairness, and the recommendation of a 2-cent rate is made in that spirit, it is believed that your commission and Congress will have the support of the publishers in any reasonable plan for the equalization of postal charges."

NOW SEVEN RATES ON SECOND CLASS MAIL.

There are at present seven rates, or variation of rates, applicable under different circumstances to second class mail matter, as follows:

- (1) The general rate of 1 cent a pound on copies mailed by publishers to subscribers, to news agents, and as sample copies.
- (2) The free-of-postage rate on copies mailed to subscribers residing in the county where the publications are printed and published, when not addressed for delivery at a city letter-carrier office.
- (3) The cent-a-pound rate on copies mailed for delivery by rural carriers when emanating from a city letter-carrier office.
- (4) The cent-a-pound rate on weekly publications mailed for delivery at a city letter-carrier office.
- (5) The cent-a-pound rate for newspapers, other than weeklies, and for periodicals not exceeding 2 ounces in weight, when deposited at a city letter-carrier office for local delivery by carriers.
- (6) The rate of 2 cents a copy for periodicals exceeding 2 ounces in weight when deposited at a city letter-carrier office for local delivery by carriers.
- (7) The rate of 1 cent for each 4 ounces for copies mailed by others than publishers or news agents.

THE DEPARTMENT'S RECOMMENDATION.

"The adoption of a flat rate of two cents a pound," said Mr. Hitchcock, "would render unnecessary the present cent-a-piece rate for newspapers and the two-cent-a-piece rate for periodicals when deposited for delivery at city letter-carrier offices. In my judgment, these two rates should be repealed, whereupon all copies of second class publications deposited in such offices could be delivered at the flat rate of two cents a pound.

"It is desirable also, I think, to abolish the requirements of the cent-a-pound rate on free-in-the-county matter delivered by rural carriers when emanating from carrier offices. This would permit the intent of the act in relation to that class of matter to be carried out according to its original purpose. As a result of these changes the number of second class postage rates, with their variations, would be reduced from seven to three and their application greatly simplified."

The Postmaster-General served notice on the commission that if by any chance it should see fit to recommend the continuance of the present rate—a "merely nominal postage rate," he called it—his department could not consistently do otherwise than renew its recommendation for a higher rate of postage on the advertising portions of magazines.

STEWART EXPLAINS SECOND CLASS COSTS.

The statement from Second Assistant Postmaster-General Stewart, following Mr. Hitchcock, laid before the commission the methods by which the cost of handling second class matter had been arrived at. This was a task of amazing difficulty if any approximation toward accuracy was to be hoped for, since all mail is carried together, and fluctuates in amount at different periods of the year. He opened with the assertion that while second class matter constituted 63.91 per cent. of the entire weight and 29.24 per cent. of the number of pieces, it yielded only 5.19 per cent. of the revenue of the postal service. He denied that the government paid the railroads excessive rates for transportation, and added that the current report that the roads received 9 cents a pound for carrying second class matter was highly misleading.

"The term 'transportation,'" said he, "has sometimes been used in its wide sense as covering not only the cost of carrying, but that of handling, distributing, and delivering the mails, and has been unfortunately misunderstood as meaning only the carriage on railroads. The department's estimate of an average cost of 9 cents a pound covers not only the cost of railroad transportation of second class matter with its equipment for the average of all hauls, which is 588 miles, but that of all other classes of transportation, and also the cost of collecting, separating, distributing and delivering such mail. If magazines are considered separately, the cost for transportation on railroads and otherwise, because they have a longer average haul than other second class matter, is over 5 cents a pound for the length of the average haul, which is 1048 miles."

THE SPECIAL WEIGHING AND REPORT THEREON.

The crux of the question in the final analysis is the statistics of cost compiled by the Post Office Department. These are based on a special weighing of the mails in 1907 provided for by act of Congress. Mr. Stewart thus summarized the method of this weighing:

"The conduct of the weighing was assigned to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, and a general departmental committee was appointed to carry it on. The scope of the weighing was wide and covered the weights of all classes of mail matter originating in every post office and railway post office in the United States for a period of six months from July 1 to December 31, 1907, and the amount of the mail carried in every railway post office car for the same period. In addition to the general weighing it covered a special weighing for a period of 30 days of the mails originating in representative post offices, together with the states of destination of such mails, and a computation thereon of the average hauls of all classes of mail matter. In addition to this, there was a computation of the average load carried in all classes of railway post-office cars. In addition to the weighings there was a seven days' count in all post offices of the number of pieces of mail of each class originating therein and the amount of revenue derived therefrom. The weight of foreign mail, the number of pieces thereof, and the amount of revenue derived therefrom were ascertained separately from the domestic mails. In the actual weighing and counting of these mails every postmaster in the United States and all crews in railway post offices were employed for the full period of time. Besides the services of postal employees and the supervisory officers at Washington, 985 postmasters were authorized to employ additional help for a limited time in certain cases, and the department employed at Washington for the receipt, arrangement, classification and checking of the reports, the correspondence consequent upon the conduct of the work, and in the tabulations and computations 130 expert clerks secured by a special civil service examination prepared therefor. There was also an additional force of 491 railway mail service mail weighers employed."

MR. STEWART'S ANALYSIS.

Mr. Stewart's analysis of the results of this weighing was minute and consumed most of the first day of the hearings. It contained much statistical data of interest and with commendable celerity was made available to those interested in document form next morning.

Consecutive tables in his statement showed: the revenues of the postal service for the fiscal year 1908 according to statutory classification; expenditures for the postal service for 1908; the weight of mail and number of pieces, by classes, for 1908, based on the special weighing of 1907; apportionment to the several classes of mail matter of the weight of equipment carried on railroads; an apportionment of expenditures for railroad transportation for 1908 to each class of mail matter based on the weight and average haul of the mail, equipment and empty equipment; an apportionment of expenditures for railroad pneumatic tube and other means of transportation for the several classes of mail matter; an apportionment of expenditures for transportation to the several classes of mail matter, and estimates of cost per pound for railroad transportation, and for all transportation, both inclusive and exclusive of equipment and empty equipment; an apportionment of expenditures for railway post office car service to the classes of mail according to space used for letter and paper separation and for storage; the ratio of handlings of the pieces of mail of the several classes reduced to a common basis of comparison; an apportionment of expenditures for post office service to the registry and money order services; the expenditures for different purposes on account of the several classes of mail and the registry, money order and special delivery services; the revenue, expense and profit or loss for the several classes of mail and the registry, money order and special delivery services; the revenue, expense and profit or loss per pound and per piece for the several classes of mail.

The methods used in arriving at the results summarized in the above tables were described by Mr. Stewart in detail.

PRESENT LAW CONFUSED.

The hearing for the Post Office Department closed with an argument by Mr. Britt, who declared that if all the magazines and newspapers were excluded from the second class rates because of a circulation gained not on the merits of the publications but because of some voting contest or offer of premiums as a bait, not 10 per cent. of all in the country would be undisturbed. He detailed at length and with clearness the ambiguities and difficulties of interpretation and enforcement inherent in the present law.

"Under the requirements and inhibitions of the present law the determination of the right of each second class publication, on the filing of its proper application, must be made on the particular facts of that individual case. In other words, it is both a judicial and an administrative function; judicial in that the laws are to be defined and applied, administrative in that the facts must be gathered, sifted and ascertained. It is a singular fact that the present law—and the one which has controlled the subject for more than a generation—imposes so many specific requirements and negatives, but does not define a single one of them. All are left to administrative construction and determination, and since the postal administrator charged with the duty of enforcing this statute usually remains in office but a short time and is soon succeeded by another, probably of different bent of mind or learning, or breadth of understanding, it would be a marvel if we did not have a lack of uniformity of construction, of regularity of expression and consequent occasional injury to publishers. In the present law there are 13 requirements and inhibitions, with the definition and interpretation of each left to administrative judgment and discretion. In the first place, the subject of the subsidized rate must be either a newspaper or other periodical publication, but neither of these is defined. On first thought it might be said that they need no definition; that they are defined by the common acceptance of their respective names; but such is not the case. Modern invention, ingenuity, skill and energy have given the publication of newspapers and periodicals divers forms, shapes and purposes. Some are dispensers of news, others are biographies and histories, still others are fiction, and yet others are mere trade lists or catalogues. From this it will be seen that if we have a common parlance definition of a newspaper or periodical publication in mind, it will not always be easy to determine whether we have before us a statutory newspaper or magazine, a trade catalogue, a biography, or a work of fiction. It is the usual course in the formulation of statutes imposing a public burden—that is, levying taxes in any form whatever—that not only the objects are defined, but that all the various limiting or descriptive terms are construed by the statute for the benefit of administrative guidance."

REQUIREMENTS FOR SECOND CLASS ENTRY.

"Since newspapers and periodicals, and they only, are entitled to the rate, when that fact is determined the postal administrator must next ascertain whether the requirements are present and the prohibited qualities absent. It must be (1) regularly issued at stated intervals; (2) published as frequently as four times a year; (3) bear date of issue; (4) have consecutive numbering; (5) be issued from a known office of publication; (6) be formed of printed paper sheets; (7) be published for the dissemination of information of a public character, or devoted to literature, the sciences, arts or some special industry; (8) must have a legitimate list of subscribers; and must not (1) have substantial binding; (2) be primarily designed for advertising purposes, or for free circulation, or for circulation at nominal rates. From this it will be seen that the statute imposes a postage charge on two classes of publications, namely, newspapers and periodicals, without defining either, and then proceeds to over-name a number of necessary characteristics which they must possess, some of them not only mandatory but quite material, and to impose certain inhibitions which also are not defined."

BOOKS VS. MAGAZINES.

"For instance," he went on, "formerly great difficulty was encountered in making the distinction between many so-called second class publications and third class matter, or books. While the cases of Houghton v. Payne, (94 U. S. 88,) and Bates & Guild Co. v. Payne, (94 U. S. 106,) go a long way toward settling this question, nevertheless it cannot be considered as finally closed. The distinction between many present-day periodicals and certain forms of books is not readily made. While the general conception of books is that of a record of permanent and enduring literature, and that of periodicals a notice of current or transient events, nevertheless there is a great deal of literary matter in books which, from its current or transient character, might well form a part of periodicals, while, on the contrary, there are many essays, biographies and other matter of serious and permanent character contained in periodicals that might well form the subject of a book. It is possible to make such distinctions, based upon reason and experience, aided by difference in physical form, to be written into a statute, as will enable the Post Office Department, as well as publishers, to make a proper distinction between second and third class matter. However, as the rate of postage on second-class matter is made to approach the cost of handling and carriage, the necessity for all distinguishing characteristics will gradually disappear, and finally, when second class matter is placed upon a self-supporting basis, the only indispensable requisite will be the presence of printed matter."

SECOND DAY OF THE HEARINGS.

Most of the second day was taken up with a vigorous cross-examination of Mr. Stewart by Mr. Noble and Mr. Sheehan. The line of interrogation by the counsel for the magazine publishers was directed with the evident purpose of forcing Mr. Stewart to admit that expenditures for the handling of all the mail had been charged up against second class matter in undue proportion, that allowances for such advantage as accrued to the Post Office Department through the handling of second class matter had not been credited in the statement made to the commission on Tuesday by the Post Office Department officials, and that some such advantages apparently had been overlooked altogether.

In the verbal tilts that came off from time to time during the day both sides made points, though neither can have said to have scored decisively.

Mr. Stewart refused to be trapped over the distinctions between "made up" and "partly made up" mail, showing that these terms applied only to the post office of origin and did not apply to the distribution made in the railway mail service. He also pointed out that although the publishers, by their preliminary sorting, effected a considerable saving in the second class mail expense at the offices of origin, it increased the cost of handling in the railway mail service slightly, owing to the better distribution given by the post offices themselves to first class mail.

Mr. Noble's point that over 50,000 post offices were not post offices of origin and so had no cost whatever of handling outgoing second class mail was met by Mr. Stewart's statement that those 50,000 offices were insignificant in size and, though over 80 per cent. of the entire number of post offices, furnished but 7 per cent. of the postal business.

In the afternoon it was the publishers' turn. Mr. Noble forced Mr. Stewart to admit that first-class mail, according to the regulations, does occasionally in certain cases get preferential treatment, for which no cost allowance had been made. Also he emphasized the point that the elimination of second class mail would mean an increase in the per pound cost of railroad transportation, that is, that the great bulk of second class mail enables the Post Office Department to carry its other classes on a low level contract basis. Mr. Stewart retorted, however, that, admitting the force of the contention, it was comparatively unimportant, since over 90 per cent. of second class mail is carried on the heavy traffic routes where low level contracts could be made without its help.

The second day closed with a special plea by E. R. Graham, of Chicago, representing the Methodist Book Concern, with large publication houses in this city and Cincinnati. Justice Hughes was plainly greatly interested in Mr. Graham's statement, which included a positive assertion that if the second class postage rate was doubled, as the Postmaster-General proposes, several of the religious publications now conducted by the Methodist Book Concern would be put out of business.

THE THIRD DAY.

At Thursday's sessions W. S. Shallenberger, former Second Assistant Postmaster-General and seven years a member of Congress, where he served on the House Committee on Postal Affairs, spoke in behalf of the publishers.

Mr. Shallenberger said he represented the Interdenominational Publishers, a combination of the manufacturers and distributors of Sunday school literature in the United States, going not merely to centres of population, but to the remotest hamlets and outpost settlements within the national boundaries.

Mr. Shallenberger is regarded as one of the best-posted men in the country on postal affairs, and discussed the postal problem from a new viewpoint. At one stage of his argument Mr. Shallenberger intimated that there might be some hidden influences seeking to have the rate on second class matter doubled, but he did not pursue the subject very far.

INCREASE WOULD DRIVE MAIL MATTER TO EXPRESS COMPANIES.

General Shallenberger said that if the rate on second class mail should be increased, as is proposed, it would drive the magazines and newspapers out of the mail into the hands of the express companies.

"The express companies," said he, "are competing with the Government. This is a waste of energy, for the Government has the facilities for doing this business, and they simply are wasted when another corporation gets the business. The express companies in some cases get lower rates from the railroads than does the Government. This should be stopped."

Mr. Shallenberger contended that the correct theory of the Post-Office management was that all the revenues should be pooled and the apportionments made to the various classes of service as needed. He thought the heaviest burden should rest on first-class matter, since every extra effort was made to move that class in preference to all others and the greatest expense was incurred to provide facilities for it. Justice Hughes several times attempted to pin him down to a definite statement as to how far he thought the theory of putting the heavier burden on first class matter should be carried, but Mr. Shallenberger skilfully evaded committing himself. He added that he did not think that the Government was even now losing money by the second class matter, but admitted that all the six Postmaster-Generals under whom he had served while in the department had thought so.

The speaker thought it very strange that at a time when every civilized nation in the world was reducing its postage and encouraging intercommunication among its peoples this Government should be bent on increasing the cost of such intercommunication and lifting up a barrier between one section of the country and another.

"The chief aim of the Post Office Department officials in the financial management of that office," said Mr. Shallenberger, "should be to make both ends meet, and guard against having a deficit."

"Your theory is that so long as the entire department is self-supporting, rates on individual classes of matter need no modification," asked Justice Hughes.

Mr. Shallenberger replied that that was the only possible theory, since it was impossible accurately to apportion cost.

Mr. Shallenberger was still speaking when the WEEKLY went to press Thursday afternoon.

COMPLAIN OF FREIGHT RATE ON BOOKS.

THE San Francisco News Company has filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company et al., as to the rates of $3 per 100 pounds charged on paper-printed novels, books and magazines when transported in bags, as against a rate of $2 L. C. L., and $1.40 carload rates when packed in boxes.

It appears that for many years past the news company has made complaint to the carriers about the injustice of this charge, and that any rate other than the current commodity rate for paper printed matter is illegal and should be refunded. Attention is also called to the fact that all of this matter shipped eastbound is composed entirely of unsaleable matter, returned to the manufacturers as worthless, and that the specific commodity rates westbound, which is $2 on L. C. L. shipments and $1.40 on C. L. shipments, should apply on the eastbound as on the westbound, to either boxed or bundled packages. Several reasons are given as to why this is an unfair classification, one of which is that the same rate applies to books and magazines worth from five cents to eight cents each as to those worth from $1 to $25 each; that the cheaper printed books move in sufficient quantities to justify a lower rate; that by reason of the small margin of profit for the dealer in printed books, magazines or periodicals the penalty of 50 per cent. assessed when they are packed in bags makes the rate prohibitive.

They ask for a hearing and investigation, and that an order be made for the establishment and maintenance of a rate for future shipments of magazines, newspapers and paper-bound books in boxes, bundles or bags, between San Francisco and Chicago which will in no instance exceed $1.40 per 100 pounds on carload and $2 on less than carload shipments. Reparation is also requested.

ENGLISH BOOKSELLERS MEET.

THE annual congress of the English Booksellers' Association was held at Cambridge from Friday, July 14, to Monday, July 17, at the invitation of the eastern branch. The members attending the meeting numbered over 80, and many of them were accompanied by ladies.

At the first business session the council called attention to the successful founding of the new "Midland Branch" of the association.

The following schedules presented at this session will show the progress of the net system in England:

	Regular.	Total Pub. Price.	Net.	Total Pub. Price.
1901.....	5675	£1211	2322	£683
1902.....	6091	1239	3050	1247
1903.....	5108	951	3581	1567
1904.....	5382	994	4303	1550
1905.....	5621	847	4617	1480
1906.....	5843	814	5136	1646
1907.....	4926	872	5426	1643
1908.....	4215	791	5658	1718
1909.....	4688	757	5607	1653
1910.....	4255	691	6071	1776

Several important series of diaries and calendars had also been made net during the year and the movement is spreading.

During the year the Association of Foreign Booksellers approached the council with a view to affiliation, and after inquiry, it being found that such a step would be mutually beneficial, the application was granted.

A further effort was also made to revive the "overs list," by which means it is thought that members in one part of the country having books which have become unsaleable may be able to dispose of them to members in another district. Complaints have, however, been received that opportunity had been taken to dispose of practically secondhand and old editions without these being so described. This being contrary to the intention of the "overs list," it was hoped that members would in future confine their offers to new books only.

The president in his address called attention to the very intense present-day competition in books, remarking that the cheap publications "had very materially affected the returns of the legitimate booksellers." He also uttered a note of warning regarding the competition of authors and the publishers' circularization of lists of names supplied by authors when such practice very often cut into the retail dealers' own trade. One could not help noticing, he said, how few legitimate booksellers there were now in the country. Most of them had had to turn to other sources of profit; no less an organization than the Times Book Club had found that bookselling did not pay alone.

In the election of officers, Mr. Keay was unanimously re-elected president; F. Hanson and F. Denny vice-presidents, together with R. Bowes, of Cambridge, and Mr. Blackwell, of Oxford. Other officers were: Treasurer, F. Calder Turner; secretary, Edwin Pearce.

Among the speakers at the annual dinner were Sir Frederick Macmillan, president of the Publishers' Association and representing that body, John Murray and Professor Sir Joseph Thomson.

The festivities of the occasion played no small part in the congress, including as they did a luncheon given by the syndics of the University of Cambridge, a reception to the ladies of the party at Newnham College, a smoking concert, a garden party at Emmanuel College with an outdoor presentation of a masque from Spenser's "Faerie Queene," and various sightseeing trips about the neighborhood.

DRYGOODS JOBBERS FAVOR PRICE MAINTENANCE.

SOME weeks ago M. C. D. Borden & Sons, one of the largest drygoods manufacturers in the United States, created considerable excitement in that trade by making the announcement that hereafter all their goods would be sold on a "regular" basis, and that their system of net prices, enforced, we understand, by actual contracts, would be abandoned. They announced that they took this step, in which they were followed by the Algonquin Printing Company and Palmer & Bates, two other large wholesale drygoods houses, in accordance with the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the Miles Medical Company against agreements for maintenance of prices.

The Jobbers' Association of Dress Fabric Buyers, an auxiliary of the National Wholesale Drygoods Association, in New York, on July 18, discussed this move.

Counsel for the Drygoods Association have taken a different view of the Miles decision in so far as it may affect contracts between manufacturers and jobbers.

They point out that in the medical case the manufacturer insisted on the maintenance of prices by the retailers, whereas the manufacturers of drygoods have fixed only the price at which jobbers shall sell to retailers, leaving competition among the retailers undisturbed.

It is argued that whatever might be the ultimate decision of the courts on this point it is in violation of no law under any interpretation thus far made.

In any event, the jobbers say, the question is one for the manufacturers and not for them, as they buy on the terms dictated by the former. The jobbers foresee, however, according to Printer's Ink, a diminution of their profits in case the manufacturers generally follow the same course as the Borden concern, and there is a disposition in the meantime to push the products of other manufacturers rather than those of the firms that have made the change.

It should be noted that the Borden company, in modifying their terms of sale so as to leave the way open for retailers to cut prices at will, expressly advised their retailers, for the good of their trade and their own business as well, to continue to maintain prices net as in the past.

BOOK-HUNTING ON THE BANKS OF THE SEINE.

CHEAP reprints have tried to kill the second-hand bookseller in England, but the fraternity still flourishes in many continental cities, and nowhere more than in Paris.

Considerably more than a mile of the quay, on what some Londoners profanely call "the Surrey side" of the Seine, says Frederic Lees in the (English) Book Monthly, is lined with boxes placed on the low wall, and containing all sorts of heterogeneous reading, varying in price from a halfpenny, for a big bundle, to several shillings. There are no very expensive books, for the boxes are often but the advanced scouts of a dingy shop on the other side of the way, where the expensive tomes are stored, and the dealers who have no shops are not capitalists—nor are their customers as a rule.

Nearly 100,000 volumes are always on sale—so M. Octave Uzanne says, and he ought to know—and he calculates that about £60 is spent by the public every day in the purchase of this second-hand literature. It sounds a big sum if you multiply it by 365, when it works out at £21,900 in the course of the year, but it does not come to much when it is divided between the 160 dealers who own these "bran pies of literature."

Very curious types of humanity some of these dealers are, and the peripatetic philosopher will find them almost as interesting as their wares. Some of them have been sixty years on the quay; alternately baked by the summer sun, drenched by the autumn storms, and nipped by the frost-laden east winds, until they have come to look as yellow and wrinkled as the covers of the old books they sell. Many strange stories of bygone bibliophiles and departed Dryasdusts could these old men tell, but they are a saturnine race, and never given to garrulity. The sole occupation of a bouquiniste appears to be to sit on a ricketty chair, on the lee side of one of the sycamore trees which line the pavement, and smoke a short pipe, with an air of helpless, hopeless resignation. Twice in the day, a stout, puffy old woman will waddle up to him with a pudding basin tied up in a napkin and half a bottle of red wine hidden under her shawl. Even to her he rarely speaks, but looks at her in a dissatisfied way, as though he were annoyed to find she had thriven on the book trade when he could not.

But he keeps a sharp eye all the time on the people who are turning over the books, whether they be Academicians or office-boys, for both will occasionally walk off with a book without paying for it. With the former, of course, the oversight is unintentional—he will put a book in his pocket in sheer absence of mind. On the whole, there are very few losses, but, on the other hand, there are very few "finds" for the bibliophile. Rare editions seldom find their way to the bookstall in these days of universal education, and even if they do they are soon picked up, for it is said that half a dozen old bookworms collect on the quay before the boxes are opened in the morning and eagerly scan the new acquisitions.

Still, there are "pretty pickings" for the literary man. Did not Robert Browning pick up at a book-stall on the steps of the Palazzo Ricardi in Florence "the square, old, yellow-book, with the crumpled vellum covers," for which he gave "eightpence English, just," and from which he wrote that marvellous poem, "The Ring and the Book?" We are not all Brownings, and though plenty of poets—of a sort, or sorts—haunt the quays, they will never find fame and money in the tattered tomes in the eightpenny, or any other box. But "there are degrees in everything," as the judge at Rouen told the elder Dumas, when he said that "if he were not in the birthplace of Corneille he would call himself a dramatist." If we cannot find the matter or bring the genius to make a great poem, we can pick up many useful books, and more especially works of reference, for a mere song.

The principal—perhaps the only—chance of making a "haul," is to search the title-pages for autographs. There is a legend—which perhaps is only a legend—that a certain M. Parisot, who was known as the "king of the bookworms," once bought a copy of Cæsar's Commentaries for 9½d. and sold it again for £60. Intrinsically, the volume was not worth more than the 19 sous paid for it; but it had been the property of Montaigne, and the celebrated essayist had written his name in it.

A good deal of care has to be exercised, however, by the collector who goes in for this particular form of bibliomania. He ought to know signatures as thoroughly as a bank cashier, or he may give a good price for books which were once the property of the young man who said he had a splendid collection of autographs and he knew they were genuine because he wrote them all himself. It has even been hinted that some of the dealers make a cunning concoction of catechu and bichromate of potash, and write therewith signatures of great men on title-pages. This is probably a libel on the dealers, who are, on the whole, as honest as the public will allow them to be. A man may be scrupulously honest in most respects, but if he has a hobby his moral sense will be sorely blunted on that one side. There was one great exception to this rule, however, and his name is still revered by all the bouquinistes of Paris, though he has been dead for nearly twenty years.

He was an old Academician, named Xavier Marmier. For many years, not a day passed that he did not perambulate the quay, and return home laden with spoils. When he went out his pockets were stuffed with cigarettes for the dealers, and bonbons for their wives and daughters, and he never tried to beat down prices, as too many misguided collectors do. On the contrary, he would often buy a book for a penny or two, and a few days later present the bookseller with five francs, for "such an extremely interesting and valuable little book is quite worth that sum," he would say. On one occasion (at least so the story runs) he presented a dealer with a hundred franc note he had found pasted between two of the leaves of a book he had bought of him. "This forms no part of the book," he said as he handed back the money, "and therefore I have no moral right to keep a thing I did not purchase." Of course, the dealer was saved from beggary and suicide, and several other unpleasant things, by this unexpected windfall; those details are needed to give dramatic interest to the story.

Old Marmier's interest in the dealers in second-hand books did not end with his life. He left instructions in his will that a sum of £40 was to be expended in giving a dinner to the bouquinistes "in memory of the happy hours I have spent in their society." The dinner duly took place on November 20, 1892. More than a hundred booksellers were present, and the speeches in memory of the founder of the feast were certainly not inferior to the general run of after-dinner oratory.

Perhaps one of the most curious features about the dealers is their gregariousness. Out of a total of 160 fully 140 are huddled together on the quays lining the south side of the river, and less than a score have crossed to the richer, larger, and more populous side. The reason of this—when they vouchsafe to give a reason—is that the south side is "more intellectual." It contains the Academy, the University, and the Latin Quarter, though perhaps the patronage of the last named is not worth much. The real reason is that their forefathers took up their stand there—and hence were called stationarii, whence our modern term stationer—at a time when the Quarter was the nucleus of the city. The Frenchman is the most conservative being who was ever blessed with a republican government, and the descendants of the old stationers still maintain their posts, though their proper title has been appropriated by the tradesman who sells pens, ink and paper.

Long may the boxes continue to line the quays, for they serve other ends besides supplying the needs of the scholar or bibliophile. They add an old-world flavor to a city which the modern Parisian is too apt to make vulgar, garish, and "up-to-date"; they bring to mind the smell of the long-unopened drawer, amidst the odors of patchouli and musk.

And when the last old dealer has made safe his wares, by the primitive but effective means of a long iron bar padlocked to two staples, and the boxes lie shimmering in the moonlight—they afford food for thought to the philosopher as he leans on one of the boxes and gazes at the river. Here, under his hand, lie twenty-five centuries of human thought. Every kind of literary ware is clamped down under these iron bars—from the verses of Homer to the drivel of the youngest devotee of the Decadent School. How many years of patient toil! What a vast amount of cudgelling of dull brains are entombed in these boxes!

And down below, the silent river winds slowly to the sea. It was flowing there before Cadmus cut his first reed, and no doubt it will be still wending its way to the sea "when the last reader reads no more." What a host of morals could be drawn from these two incongruous objects—the black river and the black boxes! But the subject is too vast, and the reader must draw his morals for himself.

FIND A NEW WAY—BETTER.

WRITERS who eke out a small living telling merchants and others how to succeed have favorite pegs upon which they usually hang most of their arguments; but, in reality, successes built along logical lines, and according to rule, rarely materialize.

Andrew Carnegie, in after-dinner speeches, is fond of telling how to succeed, but no one ever heard of a millionaire who followed his advice.

For many years John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has been telling his Sunday school class in Fifth Avenue how easy it is to make money if they will only follow a few simple rules, and yet there is no record of an increase in the per capita tax of his disciples.

On the other hand, however, strange heads keep bobbing up at regular intervals in the commercial sea, none of whom follows the regular order of things, and their success is usually proportionate to their originality and different methods of doing things. In every case they deliver the goods. While others are stumping their toes over methods, appearances and forms, the real captains of industry are doing things. Every one in the establishment, from office boy, bookkeeper and head clerk up, does a lot of wondering how the "Old Man" ever made good, thinking secretly in their heart of hearts that they could do a hundred per cent. better if they only had half a chance. But, somehow or other, the chance never comes their way.

How often have we seen some one go into a new neighborhood and start a fine store, freely predicting that it will be a death blow to some old establishment in the same community. And yet, after the public, attracted by the finery and appearances, have made a few purchases, finding that the expected value is lacking, a path will be made again to the old door.

The man who sells the most for the least money, or who gives the best service, will always get the business. When you are sure that you are doing this then talk and advertise. If you are not, save your energy and money. The world is becoming increasingly difficult to fool.—Geyer's Stationer.

ABOUT BOOK PRINTING.

Who among the thousands interested in the printing art years ago, asks Roger H. Thomas in the Progressive Printer, could have accurately foretold how, in what direction and to what extent the art of printing would develop by the end of the first decade of the twentieth century? There was surely room for improvement.

No other word so expressly and forcibly describes the poor quality of by far the larger portion of the printing of the press about the middle of the nineteenth century and a little later than that sometimes considered inelegant word "rotten." Meaningless borders, scrolls, ornaments and "what not" were used lavishly, stuck in wherever a place could be found or made for them. The rule for the use of different faces of type seemed to have been, as the Dutchman was once heard to say, "The more the manyer." In fact, many of the jobs of "war time" and for a score or so of years later can be likened to nothing so much as to a typefounder's display of samples.

The movement towards better things in typography dates from and undoubtedly was quickened by the work of William Morris, who threw aside many of the customs of the day and gave to the world an inkling of what might be done by the intelligent use of brains and hands. Printers began to study and think for themselves and put their thoughts and the results of their study into concrete examples, the result being an increasing and healthy interest in all that pertains to the printing trade.

The William Morris movement depended for success more or less upon a mediæval manner of treatment, and while much successful work has resulted along that line, it is nevertheless a fact that a larger proportion of real success has come to those who broke away from the Morris cult and intelligently applied the craftsmanship and knowledge acquired by them through study. Perhaps this is more especially noticeable in books for the regular trade, known as "trade editions," in which the question of cost of manufacture must be so carefully considered.

The efforts of publishers and printers to improve their work has resulted in elevating the public taste, which has come to the point where good printing in books is no longer entirely a matter of choice with the publishers, but is demanded by their readers. It is not at all unusual at the present time to find on a bookseller's counter a "trade edition" book possessing so many of the characteristic features of good taste in typography that, at first glance, it is hardly to be distinguished from the expensive "limited" de luxe edition, in which one naturally expects a display of the best taste in all that pertains to its making.

The result, furthermore, is not dependent for its success upon faddish inconsistencies, but is the result of a genuine effort to discover and apply the secrets of the good printing that makes so much of the work of the printers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries so charming.

The man who is called upon to design all kinds of books ought to be conversant with the various styles of typography in vogue at different periods in different countries, otherwise he may make some ridiculous blunders. A man of resources, adequately equipped as to knowledge, may, in a perfectly correct manner, give a book the atmosphere of the country and period with which the book is chiefly concerned, at practically the same cost as a book laid out or planned by a man wholly unable, for lack of the necessary knowledge, to impart such individuality to his work. Possessing the requisite knowledge of printing, its uses should at all times be kept under proper restraint, otherwise, if there should be an overplus of ideas with a limited supply of outlets for their expression ambition may get the better of judgment and result in an output of what might be termed "overdone" work.

A skilful worker is able to impart "tone" to his books merely by the manipulation of plain type, with, perhaps, a very little rule work, and it will be safer for a beginner to work diligently with plain type for a while until gradually, by practice and study, he acquires sufficient knowledge to use simple ornaments understandingly. There are six good rules for him to follow. Three of them "Study," "Study," "Study," and the other three, "Work," "Work," "Work."

There is sometimes a tendency to over-decorate books. A large amount of decorative material on hand is always a great temptation to a beginner, but availability does not necessarily justify its indiscriminate use, particularly in places where it does not properly belong. In books of permanent value the ornamentation should, as a rule, be much more restrained and dignified than in a book of lighter character, fiction, for instance. In the latter the fancy may be permitted to have more play and freedom of choice, particularly in novels of the lighter, more frivolous sorts. All sorts of bands, borders, ornaments and combination of brass rules and colors may now be found in the pages of contemporary fiction. Some of it is artistically pleasing and, doubtless, profitable commercially. In books of fiction the variety of work requires certain qualifications not so easy to classify under rules nor so easy to obtain by study as is the case with more serious work. Fortunate indeed are some men, who seem to possess an instinctive sense of color values, an inherent ability to discern the right proportions. Out of, say, a title-page of no artistic value whatever, by merely manipulating the letters and lines, spacing here, leading there, etc., such a man will make of it a satisfying page of fine proportions and perfect balance.

It is a fortunate thing that by general consent and without any concerted action, so far as we are aware, a few different fonts of type of excellent design and including both old style and modern faces are the only ones in general use for books printed in this country. Title pages and other "front matter" and headings are usually set in varying sizes of the same face of type used for the text, increasing or decreasing the leads, etc.

Brass rules of different thickness on a title page very often add much to the artistic effect, particularly when, as sometimes happens, an awkward book title that will not "compose" well is encountered. A line or two of rule above and below, or perhaps a single rule, or an appropriate narrow, floriated border enclosing the entire page may enable the designer to solve the otherwise knotty problem.

THE ENGLISH COPYRIGHT BILL.

THE standing committee of the House of Commons, which has been considering the copyright bill, reached the end of its labors last week. The following new clause, on the motion of Mr. Buxton, was added to the bill: "Notwithstanding anything in this act, it shall not be an infringement of copyright in an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting to publish a report thereon in the newspapers." The bill as amended was passed and ordered to be reported to the House.

POSTAL-EXPRESS MATTERS.

POSTAL DEPOSITS $777,748.

IN postal savings banks established in second-class offices, up to June 30, $777,748 had been deposited and $100,974 withdrawn. The average amount of the 26,889 deposits on June 30 was $57.57.

LIGHTER MAIL SACKS ADOPTED.

A CONSIDERABLE saving in transportation charges will be made by an order, signed July 28 by Postmaster-General Hitchcock, adopting a new canvas mail sack. It weighs only one pound, against the two pounds and fourteen ounces of the sack now in use.

NEW REGISTRY STAMP.

DESIGNS for a distinctive 10-cent registry stamp and a 2-cent postal card, the latter to be used exclusively for foreign correspondence, have been approved by Postmaster-General Hitchcock. They will be placed on sale January 1, 1912. The registry stamp bears an engraving of an eagle with outstretched wings, and the card stamp a portrait of President Grant.

BOOK TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA.

IN contradistinction to the statement that the residents of Philadelphia are slow it is a pleasure to record the speedy work of the representatives of Philadelphia's book trade in effecting an organization known as the Booksellers' Association of Philadelphia. Within three months from the time a few members of the trade met to consider the advisability of organizing an association of this kind the organization was completed, two meetings have been held at which addresses by prominent authors were made, and the membership has now reached its limit of 100. This shows that the booksellers of Philadelphia are live ones.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JAMES HARPER, 64 years old, a grandson of James Harper, died in Montclair, N. J., July 27. He retired apparently in his usual good health. At about midnight he was attacked with heart failure and died four hours later. He was the son of Philip Harper, one of the Harper brothers who took control of the publishing business founded by their father. He went into the business when 18 years old. At the time of his father's death he was taken into the firm, and continued to take an active part in the business until he retired twelve years ago. He is survived by his wife, one son and one daughter.

EDWARD MORSE SHEPARD died last week Friday night at his country home, Erlowest, at Lake George, after an illness of several weeks. He was born in New York on July 23, 1850, and educated in the public schools and in the College of the City of New York. He also held the honorary degree of LL.D. Mr. Shepard studied law in the office of John E. Parsons, and was admitted to the bar in 1871. He was appointed civil service commissioner in Brooklyn in 1883, State forestry commissioner in 1884-85, and was active in the reorganization of the Kings County Democracy. From that time his political activities extended from the city to the State, and from the State to the nation, giving him an enviable reputation for high political ideals, ability and intense patriotism. Amid the distractions of politics and the tasks of law he found time for study and writing. His published books are only two: "Martin Van Buren" and "Memoirs of Dugdale," but he wrote also many articles for the magazines.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

SCOTT ROBINSON, formerly the manager of Current Literature's agency department, has been appointed circulation manager.

THE NATIONAL POST COMPANY has removed its printing plant to the Bush Terminal Company, in Brooklyn.

THE executive committee of the New York Typothetae has appointed William Green and John Clyde Oswald as its representatives in the postal investigation.

THE Magazine Maker is the title of a new New York publication designed as a journal of information for writers and editors. Its offices are at 55 Irving Place and Homer Croy, who has worked on newspapers in several cities, is editor. He is now connected with the editorial staff of the Delineator.

SUMMONSES were served July 14 upon the Periodical Clearing House, and other parties forming the alleged magazine pool, against which indictments were found by the federal grand jury charging it with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, to appear and answer to the complaint in the United States Circuit Court on Monday, July 31.

E. G. LEWIS, publisher of the Woman's Magazine, has secured a judgment against the Rural Publishing Company, the publishers of the Rural New Yorker, for $30,000 damages for libel in the county court at Clayton, Mo. This suit was the outcome of an article appearing in the New Yorker making a charge of fraud against Lewis and the Woman's League of America. The defendant company was only represented by counsel, as the officers of the institution did not think the matter of very great importance. The case will be carried to the higher courts.

The World To-day, the Chicago review of the world's doings, has been purchased by the interests that control Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Motor and Motor Boating, and will bear the imprint on its next number of the "World Review Company, 381 Fourth Avenue, New York." The acquisition of this magazine gives the Hearst group what has heretofore been missing, a publication of the type of World's Work and Review of Reviews. It is not yet decided whether Shailer Matthews, the editor, will come to New York. He is a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, and it is possible that he will prefer academic duties to editorial, if he has to make a choice.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ALFRED OLLIVANT, author of "Bob, Son of Battle," and many other successful books, has written a new novel, entitled "The Taming of John Blunt," which is to be brought out in September.

MARGARITA SPALDING GERRY, who wrote "The Toy Shop," one of the fictional contributions to the books about Lincoln, is now engaged in finishing another book, which is to be published in the autumn. She has gone to Haven, Me., where the book will be completed.

EARLY in August Robert W. Chambers plans to sail with his family to Europe to spend the rest of the summer abroad, motoring in England and on the Continent. Before he returns in the early fall his new novel, "The Common Law," will be issued by his publishers, D. Appleton & Company.

KARIN MICHAELIS, whose novel, "The Dangerous Age," is just now a literary sensation in Europe, was born on March 20, 1875, in Randers, Jutland; tried to commit suicide at the age of seven, because of an affection of the eye; wished to become a pianist, but did not, and was advised against becoming a novelist by George Brandes. In 1898 her first book, a collection of short stories, was published, and in 1901 her first novel, "The Judge." Numerous other books came regularly thereafter from her pen, but her first big success was attained through "The Dangerous Age," which has gone through its one hundredth German edition in six months, and has been translated into French by Marcel Prevost. John Lane Company will publish an authorized English translation in August, before the return of the author to her home in Copenhagen. She is now in New York.

THE incident of Mark Twain's first meeting with James McNeill Whistler, the great American artist, was quaintly illustrative of Mark Twain's broader humor. Archibald Henderson relates the incident in his new book, "Mark Twain," with a number of other incidents regarding Clemens, the practical humorist. Mark Twain was taken by a friend to the studio of Whistler, who was putting the finishing touches on a picture. When Whistler inquired his guest's opinion of the picture, Mark Twain assumed the air of a connoisseur, and approaching the picture remarked that it did very well, but "he didn't care much for that cloud." He appeared to be on the point of rubbing the cloud with his gloved finger. In horror, Whistler exclaimed, "Don't touch it, the paint's wet!" "Oh, that's all right," replied Mark, with his characteristic drawl, "these aren't my best gloves, anyhow." Whereat Whistler recognized a congenial spirit, and their laugh was the beginning of a hearty friendship.

CONTINENTAL BOOK-TRADE NOTES.

M. U. HOEPLI, of Milan, announces as just out, "Speranze e Glorie le tre capitalè, Torino, Firenze, Roma," by Edmondo de Amicis.

A complete edition of the works of Björnson and a new biography of him will be published in the autumn by Herr S. Fischer in Berlin.

M. A. Lemerre, of Paris, is bringing out a new book of poems of the late poet François Coppée, entitled "Sonnets intimes et Poèmes inédits."

"A la Légion Etrangère: Journal d'un Irlandais" is a novel of present-day interest by J. Patrick le Poër, published at 3.50 fr. by M. Felix Juven, of Paris.

M. Louis Michaud, of Paris, has just published a new volume to his collection, "La Vie Anecdote et Pittoresque des Grands Ecrivains." It deals with Dickens, by P. L. Hervier.

The second and revised edition is announced of "Die Deutsche Schulsprache ein Todfeind des Deutschtums," by the Verlagsbuchhandlung of Fritzsche and Schmidt, of Leipzig.

Hermann Sudermann, the well known German writer, is bringing out a new book, a collection of novels, entitled "Die Indische Lilie," published by the I. B. Cotta'sche Buchhandlung Nachf. of Stuttgart.

"Der Rosenkranz" is the title of the German translation of Mrs. Florence L. Barclay's successful novel, "The Rosary." It is to be published immediately by the Verlagsbuchhandlung "Bethel" of Hamburg.

Hachette & Cie, of Paris, have just published an important art book, entitled "Pastels anglais (1750-1830)," by R. R. M. Sée. It contains 60 plates, of which 20 are in colors. The numbered edition is limited to 450 copies, price 60 fr., bound.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ALSTON RIVERS, LTD., the English publishers, will publish next week "Red of the Rock," a novel by a new writer, Eldrid Reynolds, who is only 21 years of age.

SIDGWICK & JACKSON, the English publishers, will issue at once "The Hampden-shire Wonder," by J. D. Beresford, author of "Jacob Stahl."

Now, nearly seventeen years after the publication of "The Prisoner of Zenda," Henry Holt & Company are having to issue the 59th edition of that book and the 23d edition of "Rupert of Hentzau."

SIMON BRENTANO is one of the four appointed by Governor Dix to serve on the commission authorized to investigate conditions under which manufacturing is carried on in first and second class cities of New York State.

THE Association of German Master Bookbinders has issued a notice, by the terms of which its members will no longer store bound or unbound books without remuneration for doing so; a special charge will therefore be made for such storage.

THERE are millionaire booksellers. We learn from the (English) Publishers' Circular that the late Frederick Rolands, foreign bookseller of Ridgmount Gardens, Gower Street, has left estate valued at £221,867 19s. 10d.

MR. MURRAY includes in his announcements "The Life of Sir Charles Dilke," which may be expected in the autumn. It should be interesting without being indiscreet, for Sir Charles always objected to the premature or otherwise inadvisable publication of secrets, especially when they were of public moment.

THE selling capacity of a novel is not always the best test of its literary quality, but it is at least an indication of a book's merits as a "good seller." Consequently, the report that the new novel, "Queed," by Henry S. Harrison, has already sold over 50,000 copies is not without significance. An eighth impression is just reported by Houghton Mifflin Co.

A RUG book which promises to be one of the most thorough works upon the subject to date is being completed by Dr. G. Griffin Lewis, a well known expert, for issue in the early autumn by the Lippincott Company, under the title of "The Practical Book of Oriental Rugs." It appears a difficult thing to tell the real value of rugs as well as how to clean and take care of them; false antiques are numerous and aniline dyes hard to detect, so that it is good to hear that there will be a beautifully illustrated book with precise instructions not only for the selection, purchase and care of rugs, but also for identifying different varieties by their patterns.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY, Boston, published, August 1, a new novel by Emma Rayner, "The Dilemma of Engeltie, the Romance of a Dutch Colonial Maid," which has for its setting "quaint, little old New York," in the days of 1702, shortly after England had succeeded in wresting from Holland her prosperous colony in the new world. Coincident with the publication of Miss Rayner's new book will appear a new edition of her novel, "Free to Serve," also a tale of Colonial New York. This was originally published by Copeland & Day, but the new edition (the 10th to be issued) will appear in new and attractive format from L. C. Page & Company.

THE death is announced of M. Hoppolyte Garnier, the well known French publisher, at the great age of 96. The firm of Garnier Frère were among the pioneers of cheap publishing, and they did for French literature and the classics very much what H. G. Bohm did in England. The two brothers (Auguste died in May, 1887), were born near Tourville, settled in Paris in 1828, started as booksellers in the Palais Royal in 1833, and rapidly acquired many valuable copyrights. In 1858 the publication of Proudhon's "La Justice dans la Révolution et dans l'Eglise" got them into trouble with the authorities, and they were condemned to a fine and imprisonment.

OTTO ULBRICH, the well-known Buffalo bookseller, recently made a clever window display with Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen and two of the season's most popular novels, "Members of the Family" and "The Moving Finger." The centerpiece of the window has a model in miniature of the famous Arc de Triomphe of Paris, made out of "Ideal" boxes. Driving through the arch was a horse and wagon loaded with fountain pens, while the arch itself was decorated with flags of many nations and a sign that read: "The Ideal Pen for Ideal People. Sold under all flags, but made under 'Old Glory.'" A house built of Owen Wister's book bore the sign, "Good for all members of the family—the best pen—the best book." Another house built out of Mr. Oppenheim's book has a sign which reads, "The Moving Finger writes best with Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pens."

NEW ENGLAND is pre-eminently the paper manufacturing center of the country. Framingham, Mass., for instance, makes nearly all the express tags that are used by shippers and express companies. Holyoke makes 60 per cent. of the writing paper. Dalton turns out the parchment and fiber paper which the United States uses for bonds and notes, and so on. Mittineague is unknown to all but a few of the ninety millions of our population, and yet everybody in business uses the ledgers and bookkeeping paper that are made there. Maine produces more newspaper printing paper than all the rest of New England combined, and more wrapping paper, but Massachusetts produces more writing and book paper, while Connecticut is our largest source of supply of pasteboard. Formerly New England had a monopoly of the paper business. It is still its third industry.

We learn from a note in The Nation that the long-announced official catalogue of art in Italy is about to begin with "Aosta," by Pietro Toesca. This "Catalogo delle cose d'arte e di antichità d'Italia" will surpass any similar government publication. The size is small folio, there are to be numerous cuts in the text and in plates, and, besides the succinct description, the bibliography of each object is recorded. The scheme of this great work includes some eight thousand communes. Comm. Corrado Ricci, director-general of fine arts, to whose energy the initiation of this great work is chiefly due, reports in an introductory letter addressed to the minister of public education that the lists for Verona, Padua, Monza, Piacenza, Parma, Ravenna, Fiesole, Pisa, Urbino, Of-fida, Terni, Città della Pieve, Tivoli, Terracina and Monreale are ready. The section on Pisa, by Roberto Papini, is in the press. The foreign price is reckoned at 50 centesimi the folio of eight pages. Foreign subscriptions are received at the publisher's, E. Calzone, Rome, or at any international bookseller's, at the rate of 2.50 lire for each section of forty pages.

In reply to a letter of criticism, the English Stationery Trades Journal, in its issue for July, prints a rather elaborate history and defense of the English "Private Christmas Greeting Card Association," which, in view of our own interest in net price maintenance, is not without interest here. The "P. C. G. C. A." was formed ten years ago to counteract trade abuses of long standing and then increasing importance—our old enemies, "unfair competition" and "under-selling." In fact at that time the Christmas card trade, a much more important stationery adjunct in England than here, was in a fair way to be ruined entirely. The "P. C. G. C. A." took vigorous hold of the situation, enlisted the united stationery trade of the country in the movement—it has now eight thousand members—restricted sales to wholesalers dealing fairly, and only with bona fide retail stationery firms; secured a discount of 33⅓ per cent. for the trade, and drew up carefully thought out rules of trade; all of which have proved the remaking of the Christmas card business. As a result it has never, we understand, been in a more prosperous condition than at the present time.

IN VIEW of a recent article reprinted in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY on the use of India paper in book work, one fall announcement of Henry Holt & Company is of special interest. A new anthology of English poetry, compiled by Burton E. Stevenson, and in many ways the most complete and representative yet published, will appear in November. It will be on India paper and will run to about 3000 pages octavo. This will afford room for the inclusion of about 3500 poems from nearly 1100 poets. American poets are much more thoroughly represented than in any other general anthology. The difficulties of copyright have persuaded most anthologists that recent American poetry is not worth including. The same may be said of recent English poetry. Such poets as Alfred Noyes and Francis Thompson are here represented characteristically for the first time in any general anthology. In getting this work together, the compiler has gone carefully through the works of all the great English and American poets, the work of most of the minor ones; has examined about 200 other anthologies, and the prominent American magazines for many years back. The use of India paper makes possible a single column to a page instead of the two-column arrangement of the older anthologies, and gives a compact handy volume for reading or the shelf instead of an unwieldy book merely for the table.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBANY, N. Y.—A. H. Clapp, one of the oldest established booksellers in the trade, has had an involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed against him.

AYLMER, ONT.—G. M. Standing has opened a new book and stationery store in the Nairn Block.

BERKELEY, CAL.—Harnes & Geary, bookdealers on Center Street, have sold out to Abbott's Bookstore, on Shattuck Avenue, and the two stores will be combined and operated hereafter under the name of Abbott's Bookstore.

DINUBA, CAL.—B. F. Treece, bookseller, has recently sold out to R. C. Westcott.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The San Francisco News Company has incorporated a branch store here for the greater convenience of handling the magazine and book and stationery business in this section. The new corporation will be known as the Los Angeles News Company.

MONTREY, CAL.—Last week a meeting of the creditors of the Monterey News Company, a book and stationery concern, was called to determine on a disposition of the present financial difficulties of the firm.

NEW YORK CITY.—After a meeting of the creditors of Wessels & Bissell, 225 Fifth Avenue, a committee of the latter, consisting of Horace Rutter, of Horace Rutter & Son; B. S. Day, and A. Harcourt, of Henry Holt & Company, were appointed to take charge of the business. It was decided that the best plan was to liquidate it as advantageously as possible, and Mr. Wessels was given the active direction of this work. In their short life Wessels & Bissell had succeeded in building up a very creditable line, and the present contingency is much regretted by their many friends in the trade. Some of their books have already been taken over by the Baker & Taylor Company, others by Bobbs-Merrill and Platt & Peck.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH.—The Bradbury Company, bookdealers, have recently made extensive alterations and repairs in their store.

OAKLAND, CAL.—The new department store which is being constructed for the firm of H. C. Capwell & Co. will have a fine book and stationery department. The book department will be under the direct supervision and management of Smith Bros., who are now the biggest book dealers in this city.

OAKLAND, CAL.—The book department of the Broadway Department Store will shortly have a new home, as the store is soon to move into its new building.

OAKLAND, CAL.—Cooper & Co., booksellers and stationers, have recently sold out to N. S. Allen.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—The O. & N. Book Shop, W. L. Morgan, manager, has moved from 116 E. 2d South Street to 10 E. 2d South Street. The new location is in the Kenyon Hotel building, the exact center of the business district.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Edward Wobber, of Wobbers, stationers and booksellers, returned last week with his wife from his trip to Honolulu.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Claude Hathaway, stationer and bookseller, has made an assignment of his stock and business.

GOSSIP.

(As, according to the New York Evening Post, a disciple of Ferrero might view certain episodes in fashionable historical circles.)

His Majesty Henry VIII. announces his engagement to Miss Jane Seymour. Owing to the sudden death of the late queen, née Boleyn, this morning, the marriage will not take place until to-morrow. His majesty is being kept quite busy receiving condolences and congratulations.

Scandal is busy with the sudden disappearance of Helen, wife of King Menelaus. The official report is that the queen has been compelled to keep her room by a painful attack of facial neuralgia. But it is a strange coincidence that simultaneously with the withdrawal of the queen from public view, Prince Paris, who has been at the palace for some time on a diplomatic mission, should also have disappeared. There are reports that a couple resembling the two have been seen on the pier at Argos.

Mrs. Oliver Cromwell was among the spectators at yesterday's execution of Charles I. She occupied a prominent seat in the Protector's box, and was, as usual, simply but appropriately gowned. She wore a drab creation, trimmed with Puritan blue. Mrs. Cromwell gave a luncheon immediately following the affair. Among those invited were Mesdames Blessed - Are - the - Peacemakers Snark, Thou Shalt-Not-Steal Wolfkin, In-the-Beginning-Was-the-Word Junkerman, and Canst - Thou - Draw - Out - Leviathan - with-an-Hook Hardpan.

From the court circular we learn that his Majesty Ahab I. has taken on indefinite lease the charmingly situated vineyard adjoining the royal park and hitherto occupied by Naboth, the Jezreelite. It is his majesty's intention to convert his new acquisition into a garden, so as to insure an uninterrupted supply of fresh vegetables for the royal table. It is understood that the negotiations on several occasions threatened to come to an end, owing to Naboth's reluctance to part with a piece of property which had been in the family ever since King David took Jerusalem from the Jebusites. However, all difficulties were surmounted through the tactful intervention of Her Majesty Queen Jezebel.

"The sales department of a company is only as strong as its local dealers, and the backing it gives them."

"To PUSH a trade-mark on other than quality goods is business suicide."

BOOKS WANTED

Under this head booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from nonsubscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted. In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withdrawing their use from irresponsible advertisers, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.
